

SOMETHING OF AMERICA'S CHIEF SOCIAL FEMININE LIGHT

Enjoys That Distinction on Account of Having Furnished More Novel, Not to Say "Bizarre," Social Functions Than Any Other Member of Her Sex.

MRS. STUYVESANT FISH,

Photograph Taken at the Cynthia Roche Wedding in New York Last Month, and Still a Luscious Morsel of Gossip For Many Men and Women.

Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish is this summer, as usual, the leading society personage in America. Here is a photograph that shows her as she is today. It is a veritable "human document." It was by the sheerest luck that it was secured. Mrs. Fish is undoubtedly the hardest prominent woman in America to photograph. The ordinary photographs of Mrs. Fish that have been doing duty, show her as she was years ago.

Mrs. Fish enjoys the distinction of being the leading society personage in America largely because of the fact that she has given more novel, not to say bizarre, social "functions" than any other person, in or beyond the pale of the so-called four hundred.

She is the original entertainer, par excellence, of the Newport summer colony. Whatever she does makes that laced coterie of multimillionaire families sit up and display decided interest. Incidentally, the same effect is noticeable pretty generally throughout the country.

Mrs. Fish's Fourth of July contribution to the entertainment of Newport and the gossip of a nation was to have been a bathing suit dinner, but a down-pour of rain caused the plan to be changed, the guests appearing in conventional garb.

One of Mrs. Fish's most daring and costly functions was given three years ago, when she hired the entire "Chinese Honeymoon" company to provide fun for the guests, assembled in her Newport cottage. This happened on St. Valentine's day, and was the talk of the socially elect for months, so successfully did she surprise them out of their state of real and assumed ennui.

Among Mrs. Fish's earlier social successes was the "umbrella dinner." Each guest sat beneath a costly shade-peace as the agents of the hostess could procure. Another much-talked-of entertainment has gone down into Newport history as "the night in Japan."

So bizarre were some features of this night that many persons, in and out of society, almost had hysterics over them. Mrs. Fish is also distinguished among her social associates as a remarkably frank talker. She has dared to call Newport and its moneyed habits stupid. She has stigmatized many of the socially elect as being too much engaged in running after bearers of title; and she it was who said she understood that Mrs. Roosevelt dressed on $300 a year, and looked it. Mrs. Fish's sayings run up as much talk as her entertainments.

It was Mrs. Fish who took up Harry Lehr and brought him to the fore. Had it not been for her good offices, Mr. Lehr would probably not be a steady contributor to the silly season gaiety of the country.

Mrs. Fish has three homes. One in New York City. A second is on the banks of the Hudson, opposite West Point; its name is "Glencliff." Her most famous home is her Newport cottage—a palace-like structure bearing the title "Crossways." This is her favorite house, and here she gives her elaborate entertainments.

Before her marriage Mrs. Fish was Miss Marion Arlson. Wealth was not then at her beck and call. But her family was an old one and fixed socially. The Fishes have been social lights since revolutionary days, so that Mrs. Fish is not to be listed among those who have "climbed." She has done what she has done, not in order to get there socially, but for the pure love of doing them.

Let her career be viewed from any standpoint, she appears the most daring successful social personage of her day and generation.

Mr. Stuyvesant Fish, who is known to the world of transportation and finance as the president of the Illinois Central Railroad, and to the world of society as Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish's husband, cares not a fig for society.

PROVO.

There is a general exodus to the canyons and other summer retreats which makes a dearth of social events in the city, but causes frequent visits to and from the camps where friends and relatives are spending the heated term.

The Tabernacle choir visited Olmstead, the beautiful village of L. L. Nunn at the mouth of Provo canyon, Thursday evening. The object of the visit was to honor Mr. Nunn with a concert in appreciation for his generous contribution in the tabernacle organ fund. The singers were given a royal reception, and the evening passed with a spirited and artistic rendition of several fine selections by the visitors, and their enjoyment of Mr. Nunn's hospitality, and admiring the beautiful home he has caused to spring up as if by magic for himself and his associates and employees in his great electrical enterprises. The trip was made on hayracks, and the novelty of the ride added interest to the visit.

WATERPROOF AND ALMOST DUSTPROOF.

For a long tour the waterproofed motor suit is a comfort and a necessity. This smart suit of griffonite cloth is one of the latest models of the season. The skirt is gored and flounced, and smartly trimmed with straps. The coat, quite loose fitting, closes with a wide doublebreasted effect in front. Big cloth-covered buttons are used, and as few dangling trimmings as possible. The idea is to eliminate every possible bit of superfluous trimming, so there will be fewer places for dust to accumulate upon and less work in cleaning such suits.

SOCIAL CHAT

The week, despite the warm weather, has been a comparatively lively one in social matters, luncheons, dinners, Kensingtons and card parties going on as if the thermometer had not operated near the top notches to annihilate ambition and effort. Many of the week's functions have been in honor of Miss Louise Walden, whose marriage to George McLaughlin takes place in the near future, her friends having filled up nearly every day with social tributes to her popularity. These complimentary functions began on Monday morning in a breakfast given by Miss Lenora Morse, the table being decorated in white and green, with sweet peas, boxes of white tulips and trailing plums, while the favors were also in white and green. In the shape of bunches of white sweet peas tied with green ribbon, invited to meet Miss Walden were Miss Estelle Davis, Miss Zora Morse, Miss Alberta Martin, Miss Jessie Martin, Miss Ethel Partridge, Miss Ruebelle Rathbone, Miss Irma Walker, Miss Elsie Davis and Miss Margaret Walden.

On Monday afternoon Miss Walden was guest of honor at a card party given by the Misses Alveta and Jessie Martin, about 25 guests being entertained. The rooms were effectively decorated, the parlor in pink and white sweet peas and the diningroom in sunflowers and yellow nasturtiums, while the counters were weddingbells in water colors. The guests were Miss Ethel Partridge, Miss Evelyn Thomas, Miss Annie Adams, Miss Jessie Home, Miss Margaret Walden, Miss Agnes Nolen, Miss Rose Nolen, Miss Ina Rudy, Miss Fanny Bredren, Miss Marjorie Higgins, Miss Irma Walker, Miss Lenora Morse, Miss Ruebelle Rathbone, Miss Lillian Jurnham, Miss Edna Edwards, Miss Marion Jones, Miss Beatrice Boreman of Ogden.

Miss Jessie Home entertained at a Kensington on Wednesday in honor of Miss Walden, the parlor being decorated in pink and white sweet peas, and the diningroom and library in nasturtiums. A feature of the affair was the cutting of a large wedding cake by the bride-elect which contained many surprises in the way of lucky bridal emblems.
